- Welcome— Jan Cullen, C&K early childhood education and care general manager
- Address— Dr Mary Mahoney AO, C&K Board of Management president
- Welcome to Country— Maroochy Barambah, Turrbal songwoman
- Performance— Harvest Rain Theatre
- Inaugural Keith Hayes Memorial Lecture— presented by Dr Helen Caldicott, Nuclear Policy Research Institute president and founder of Physicians for Social Responsibility, winner of the 2003 Lennan Prize for Cultural Freedom and a nominee for the Nobel Peace Prize.
Dr. Helen Caldicott, an internationally recognized advocate to end the nuclear age for the safety and health of all people, particularly children, and the planet. Trained as a paediatrician, Dr. Caldicott describes the medical, biological, and genetic effects of the entire nuclear fuel cycle from uranium mining and processing to nuclear power generation, nuclear weapons, and nuclear waste.
- Music and Movement— Renata Halpin, children's entertainer
This presentation is a great opportunity to learn some new and easy transition songs to get those children off to the bathroom and lunch table! You will also be learning fantastic new music and movement ideas as well as more helpful storytelling techniques for everyday interactions!

DISK2

- From developmentalism to sociocultural theory; exploring contemporary theories in early childhood education— Dr Susan Edwards, Monash University early childhood education lecturer
This presentation will examine the role of sociocultural theory in contemporary orientations towards early education and care. Research examining teachers' appropriation of sociocultural theory will be shared to highlight the process involved in moving from a developmental to sociocultural approach to working with young children and families.
- Building waterfalls a mirror of reflection—Lynne Moore, C&K Curriculum coordinator
Imagine the possibilities that arise when Building Waterfalls is held up as the mirror of reflection that it is intended to be. Are we really seeing what we think we are seeing? Is it necessary that to see the real mirror we should look beyond the reflection in it? How can we truly connect, enlarge, listen and explore with and alongside children, families and colleagues?
